Kat McKay is an Associate of Wong Fleming, concentrating her practice in the areas of commercial litigation and insurance defense and coverage. Ms. McKay has extensive experience in handling motions and depositions, conducting other discovery, and negotiating settlements in insurance defense and asbestos defense cases. She has prepared legal briefs, detailed memoranda, discovery motions, motions for summary judgment, case evaluations, pleadings, interrogatories, requests for production of documents, and other pleadings in complex litigation matters pending in Federal and State courts. She is admitted to practice in New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

In addition to 16 years as a practicing attorney, Ms. McKay has been an Adjunct Professor of Philosophy at Rider University and Rowan College at Burlington County and has taught numerous CLEs both online and in-person to practicing attorneys. As part of her own research company, Ms. McKay has taught test prep classes as well as published multiple books in this area to help those seeking admission to graduate school.

Ms. McKay earned her Bachelor of Arts degree from Villanova University, her Juris Doctorate from Villanova University School of Law, has completed the coursework required for a Ph.D. in Philosophy, and transferred to a Ph.D. in Humanities program for which she is currently completing coursework.
