

Wong Fleming's family law practice is a local Washington-based group of litigators

Wong Fleming's family law practice is a local Washington-based group of litigators. Our family law attorneys are experienced advocates for their clients facing sensitive family issues. The family law litigation team represent clients in adoptions, child custody, and dissolution of marriage, child support, and civil domestic violence cases. The family law group is experienced with all facets of the family law litigation practice including negotiation, motions, mediation, arbitration, and trial.

Wong Fleming represents clients from a wide range of backgrounds. We provide guidance throughout the process including a strategic resolution of the issues involved in an efficient manner.

The members of the family law practice group are strong litigators and negotiators with the experience and skills to help you resolve the matters at any stage of litigation. We tailor our strategy with the client's goals to provide optimal efficiency and service to the client.
