Representative Cases

Litigation Involving Printing Operations

We represented a large insurance company with printing operations in a personal injury action where the plaintiff sued over a half a dozen employers, several ink manufacturers, and a distributor of printing solutions, claiming that his exposure over a 30 year period to certain solvents caused him to be diagnosed with cancer. This litigation involved deposing the plaintiff and his wife, who also brought a claim for loss of consortium, and various international defendants and the retention of medical and environmental experts, including toxicologists.

Lead Paint and Asbestos Litigation

We represented a large insurance company, which owned and managed large multiple dwelling complexes and commercial properties, in several lawsuits where it was alleged that the tenants, over an extensive period of time, incurred neurological impairments resulting from lead and/or asbestos exposure. These lawsuits involved multiple defendants, often from between 10 to 30 defendants, who variously may have owned or managed the properties in question. We have also represented a mineral supplier, which had multiple lawsuits where the plaintiffs claimed they had mesothelioma, as a result of asbestos exposure.

Premises Liability Litigation Involving Customer or Employee Accidents

We represented Fortune 500 insurance companies, an oil company and other entities, both insured and self-insured, in litigation involving slips and falls and workplace accidents. These cases often involve the applicability of the exclusivity provisions of state workers' compensation statutes, requiring dismissal of these actions. We also represented a company in multiple states that provides maintenance operations and security at shopping malls. Our Firm attorneys have represented the owners of various sporting and musical event venues in all types of premises liability and negligent security suits.

Mold Litigation

We represented an entity, which was insured by a large insurance company, in a toxic mold litigation. We have also handled construction litigation involving mold and have worked with multiple air quality, construction and remediation experts, as well as medical professionals.

Environmental Actions

We have represented corporations in environmental cleanup arbitrations involving mercury contamination and multi-million dollar lawsuits under CERCLA. We have also been involved in environmental litigation involving oil companies, where purchasers of real estate have claimed that our clients contaminated certain sites from prior use.

Interpleader Actions and Insurance Coverage

The Firm has handled insurance coverage matters relating to health, disability, premises liability, workers' compensation and life insurance. We have assisted a large pension company and several life insurance companies in filing interpleader actions when the beneficiary of a life insurance policy was in question. The Firm has also assisted several insurance and other companies in determining whether there may be insurance coverage in litigation involving asbestos, sexual harassment, property and casualty, health benefits and other claims.

Product Liability Actions

We have represented and continue to represent Fortune 100 companies in products liability actions and have successfully obtained dismissal of actions under the NJ Product Liability Act. We have also regularly tendered these claims to the manufacturers on behalf of our retailer clients. In addition, we have prevailed on behalf of certain manufacturers, including foreign manufacturers in Europe and India, on the basis of lack of personal jurisdiction.
